gin, assumed by Mr. Sothern, is a wiening comappears to have been written with a special view to suit the actor, for the character is adjusted to bis peculiarities, at overy important point. Mr. Sothern was successful in it, and the continuance of his success may considently be anticipated. Mr. Fredumen has set this new play in a scenic environment of architectural accuracy and romantic beauty. Mr. Sothern is the central figure, but the auxiliar parts are in competent hands, and the piece was in all respects brightly represented. The cast has altrespects brightly represented. The cast has altrespects brightly represented. The public gain, in a good, romantic drama, is pleasure to the imagnation and enrichment of the mind, with the ideals of chivalrous character and conduct, and to Mr. Frohman's tasteful administration of the Lyceum Theatre are due some of the most delightful romantic dramas of the passing day. # WRINLEY'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

From The Scattle Post-Intelligencer. It is superfluous to comment upon it; it speaks for itself. All that any Republican need say on the subject is to ask those who have wavered to read it houghfully as clizers, with no other object in view than the progress and prosperity of an enlightened Nation.

IN ACCORD WITH THE PEOPLE. From The Great Falls Leader. McKinley states the Republican position well, any there is no doubt that there he is in thorough according the state of the state of the people with all his party and with the majority of the people of the country. The question for Republicans who disagree with him on the silver question to decide is whether a part is greater than the whole.

THE LANGUAGE OF A STATESMAN.

From The St. Paul Pioneer Press. It is a plain and forcible presentation of the issues of the campaign in language which needs no interpreter to the plain people of America; but it is in the language of an American statesman and of a Respublican statesman, inspired by the loftiest spirit of patriotism.

OPPOSED TO A SECTIONAL CONTEST. From The Boston Herald.

It should not fail to be noted that Governor McKin-ley, in the concluding paragraph of his letter of ac-ceptance, commits the Republican party against the continuance of the sectional warfare with the Sputh.

AN UNANSWERABLE DOCUMENT. From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat. McKinley's letter of acceptance is another of those unanswerable documents which the Republican lead-ers are placing before the people this year.

From The Minneapolis Tribune.

It is a complete arsenal, from which the Republican debater may draw keen weapons of logic and fact with which to effectually combat the fallacles of the copposition. But better than all this, it presents the listes so clearly that the plain people will have no dimension understarding them.

CROWDED WITH ARGUMENTS. From The Grand Rapids Herald. The letter is crowded with crisp, strong arguments, it is widle with truth and convincing in its simple statements of known facts. It condones nothing, oxcuss nothing, nor yet pleads for anything. In this it is peculiar and admirable as peculiar.

THE MAN OF THE HOUSE.

From The Chicago Record.

The various peculiartiles of that mesculine individual who usually bears the title of "the man of the house" are favorite subjects of the other sex. They have summered him and wintered him and any extra proof of his obuseness only calls forth the remark. "That's just like a man!"

With some ansympathetic wives man is a despot, and his will be the pivot upon which the household affairs revolve. His convenience regulates the hour for every meal; his preference marks the choice of the food to be served. Due deference must be paid to all his opinions, for he is plainly a creature to be managed by femioine cuming and to be led by apparent submissiveness. He is the monarch of the domestic social and funcial departments, and women are supposed to be his slaves, to carry out his wieltes.

Eut if he has become all this, and much more in domestle social and manche passes, to carry out his wishes.

But if he has become all this, and much more in rare instances, it is woman, as wife, mother of sister, who has made him so. "The man of the house, is not naturally deprayed. He has still enough of the divine is him to mould his character symmetrically and make him a joy and a blessing to all in the home. Where was ever a true home without its master? We could not exist, we might drag wearfily out our remaining years, but could not exist our man of the house."

This man has as few faults as we ourselves are guilty of, in all probability. And it is really comforting to our self-love to note that he is not quite perfect. It is worth the fan to see him lose his horse; to have him forget to replenish the fire in time to saye its life; to have him bring some arms futney story dozens of times, to have him lose his hat, gloves newspapers and slippers about the house; to have him forget the children's are, and conduct himself generally in the usual human fashion.

And when the hired girls flare up and leave, who hat, gloves, newspapers and slippers are and house; to have him forzet the children's are, and conduct himself generally in the usual human fashion.

And when the hired girls flare up and kave, who comes nobly to the rescue, and, handling the dishient works defits, wipe all the dishes, from chira and sliver to pitcherr and platters? The man of the house. Who compliments our cooking an itestifies to his sincerular which compliments our cooking and itestifies to his sincerular to his sincerular to the savenge of the children is clothes?

Who reads the lines in our careworn faces and warms us to be careful and not overwork? Who is until the whole house rings with cracks Jokes motil chedlence to every business law or ordered and tips back in his chair so gracefully vehicle reading his evening paper, while the weight of our presence?
